

HANTSPORT GENEALOGICAL INDEX 1991

(with addendum)

In the belief that an interest in the search for one's roots is more than a passing fashion, that it is in fact a continuing function of a civilized people, any instrument which will aid in this search is worthy of development.

The use of public records which are so necessary for genealogical research is greatly facilitated by the provision of a surname index. Unfortunately very few primary records in Nova Scotia have been indexed. This makes each search extremely time consuming. Many sources have not yet been transcribed or microfilmed to preserve the records for future generations.

The relatively recent advent of affordable personal computers with the capacity necessary to store and sort large quantities of data has made it practical for an index such as this to be created.

The Hantsport and Area Historical Society presents this, the product of our labour over the past two years, a Genealogical Surname Index containing 12910 entries extracted from the eighteen primary sources listed below. The sources themselves must be consulted to obtain the details each one contains.

Errors and omissions are invariably found in this type of work due to discrepancies and inconsistencies in early records and the difficulty of deciphering hand-written entries. This is especially true of the spelling of some family names; therefore the reader should look for variations. In some instances the name was changed in the index to current use but not all entries were changed in all records. The Society would be pleased to hear of any errors found.

It is our hope that this Index will serve as a useful aid to those already involved in genealogical research and will engender an interest in others. The index should help save many hours but may also bring new sources, which might not otherwise have been considered, to the attention of the researcher.
