FOREWARD.

"The growing belief that the schools must deal with every day living is the greatest forward movement in education,"—education meaning a training which fits for all the duties of Life. It means a development of mind and muscle, a training for citizenship, for home-making, for parenthood, and for social and economic duties.

This education is derived largely from the surroundings and experiences of the individual, and not from the mere acquiring of information thru the medium of the printed page.

More than two-fifths of the pupils who enter the public schools drop out before reaching Grade VI. Why? Chiefly because they see little or no connection between the teaching in the school and their everyday life.

Thru gardening, stock-raising, sewing, cooking, etc., the child is brought into contact with the real things of life. We believe, however, that gardening takes precedence over other activities in cultural value. The training received developes Head and Heart as well as Hand. Geography, Drawing, Arithmetic, Chemistry, Physics and English composition are all vitalized by being related to Gardening - to operations easily understood by the child, because seen and experienced.

Respect for the rights of others; appreciation of the dignity of common tasks; an intimate relationship with the wonder-working forces of the universe; responsiveness to the charm of the beautiful out-of-doors; all these become the possession of the human being who is a co-worker with nature and with nature's God.
